Chromotherapy is therapy through colours. The origins of chromotherapy can be found as far back as in the ancient and traditional medicines of India, China and Greece. It is a method of harmonization and natural healing of diseases through colours. Each colour corresponds to a specific vibration with its own speed, wavelength or rhythm. Its impact can be felt as much on the physical, psychic or emotional level and allows our own vital energy to reach a state which greatly increases self healing.

We react to colours both on the conscious and subconscious level. When using the highest light frequencies, harmonization becomes possible. Coloured light frequencies act on the physical and subtle level, increasing the vibratory level of the individual thereby releasing him from the grip of unhealthy dependencies. Each colour has a different action and will have an effect on various organs.
